FOURTEEN YEARS FOR ARMED ROBBERY.

At the Criminal Sessions this morning, before Mr Justice Hazeland, Chou Fo was charged with armed robbery at 1961 Chrong-sha-wan on May 14th, the property stolen being said to be worth, $22.25, one jade stone bangle and five pieces of clothing. Mr C. G. Alabaster (instructed by Mr H L. Dennys, jr.,) prosecuted on behalf of the Crown.

The jury was constituted as follows :-Messis J. H. Taggert (foreman), A. Ebraham, C. A. dos Ramedios, C. R. Ismail, J. F. Garraway, E. Howard and

R. Sconderan. " Mr Aluluster said it was alleged that prisoner came with a number of other persons to the house. There were about nine altogether, and on being disturbed they ran away. Four went in one direction and five in another. The people in the house pursued the four, amongst whom was prisoner, and as a policeman approached he threw a knife away.

Evidence was called and prisoner was Prisoner, on hearing the sentence, said he would rather be hung.

ITEMS AT THE COURTS.

A native was sentenced to one month's imprisonment, by Mr J. R. Wood, at the Magistracy to-day, for striking his child The mother said defendant had also been frequently cruel to her.

the s.s. Catherine Apear on Saturday evening a Chinaman was sentenced to one month's imprisonment at the Magistracy to-day, while a woman implicated in the affair was sent to goal for seven days', both without the option of a fine.

Chan Yau was charged at the Criminal TRIMMED & UNTRIMMED HATS. Session this morning, before Mr Justice Hazeland, with uttering two counterfeit dollars at Hunghom on May 16th and 17th respectively. Prisoner pleaded guilty on the first count, and Mr C. G. Alibaster. who prosecuted on behalf of the Crown said he would not offer any evidence on the second charge. His Lordship passed sentence of one year's hard labour.

Messra Ellis and Ellis in their weekly subber share circular, dated June 17th, state:-The promising outlook at the beginning of the work, when the market opened strong in sympathy with a rise in the price of rubber, was not sustain ed throughout the week. The smart spurt in the price of shares was soon chocked and a recession took place, bringing rates down several points though nor to the depth touched during the preceding week. Balos have been for and far between. though a better evidence is apparent of an inquiry for Singapor stocks. The market closes rather steadier. Para Rabber in London by private telegram, is advised at 10s. 3d. toidny.

ARMY SERVICE IN INDIA.

There have been many improvements the pay and prospects of British soldiers in India in the last thirty years, but there still remain some which might be adopted and which would add to the health and comfort of the men and tend to make service in the ranks more popular than i is. Every year, whorever British regiments are stationed throughout India and Burms, jone sees, as the trooping season comes round, every corps depleted of from 60. to 120 men, whose time has expired. Now, if these lads, and most of them seem to be under twenty-one years of age-were given the opportunity of a short furlough in England to re-visit their homes and and relatives it is probable that at least 75 per cent. of them, seeing how difficult it is to get employment, would elect to remain in their regiments where they would certainly be of more service than newly-joined recruits. .. They are only anxious at their departure for a schauge and holiday, to be relieved from monoton, and military discipline. But the ma jority, after a few months, would probably begin to appreciate the fact that there are worse places than barracks, even though under military discipline. How many amongst the unemployed would be glad to exchange their position for that of a soldier with a certainty of food and lodging, with medical attendance and care when sick, and regular pay? Why should we not give private soldiers the privilege of leave we grant to their officers when, by doing so, we should probably make service in the ranks more popular and save perhaps thousands of men yearly from joining the army of the unemployed? Greater attention should also be paid to soldiers when travelling from one station to another in India in time of peace. When there is necessity no class of men will probably put up with hardship and discomfort more uncomplainingly than the British soldier. But at the present time, when moving regiments from Burma to India, he is often made to incur quite unnecessary discomfort and privations which would not be tolerated by steerage passengers in Europe, and which show a disregard for his convenience which Englishmen would be the first to criticise if they happened in any other army than our own. Only last year the bad messing arrangements on a Government troopship conveying a regiment from Rangoon to Calcutta, a four days' trip, were exposed in Truth and where, it my memory is correct, there was "actual, ly a deficiency of bread, although there must have been plenty of flour, for buna were purchased engerly by hungry men. We de not remember hearing of any public enquiry into this senudal, or that any one was punished for it. When travelling by the British India Steam Navigation Company steamer the soldiers get a sufficient supply of food. Why should it be different on Government troopship on a short voyage These things get talked about, and do not add to the popularity of army service. They are easily remudied, and the soldier, in time of peace, when travelling on Government service should never be in & worse position than ordinary deck or steerage passengers as regards food or other conveniences. The army now contain a fair proportion of well squested men, and as years go by the number will increase. It, pays to keep such men contented and without grievances which are so easy to remove. It pays also to keep young men of good character and short service in the ranks rather than to fill their places with others who have to go through the same training and learn what the others know. We should therefore offer furlough for six or even twelve months to all time-expired men, giving them the option of returning to the service at the expiration of their leave. If we could by such furlough retain even by ten per cent the number of military men forced by competition into the ranks of the unemployed, the country would be a gainer, first, by having a larger number of trained soldiers in the ranks, and, secondly, by lessening the number of the destitute unemployed at home. Like other Europeans in India, the British soldier's health has greatly improved in the last thirty years." In most instances this may be attributed to education which has brought about more moderation in drink. One soldom sees now what used to The Cheapness and quality of be a common sight—a soldier the worse for liquor in the streets of the larger cities: And if one of them does happen to go to excess, it will often be found that two of his sober comrades will assist him to barracks before he gots too abstructive or noisy. There seems to have arisen a healthy shame about being seen intoxicated in a public place. "Look what care, they take of their own class," the writer heard a Burmese woman say to mother as two sober men were leading a comrade, who had drunk "not wisely but too well," from an entertainment in Rangoon one night. The recent raising of the ment of India will, no doubt, also help to improve the belth of soldiers and others in India. The habit of smoking tobacco in paper has considerably increased in India of late years. It is surprising that it should be so, for ci ars and cheroots of good tob-con--Indian grown-are cheap, and certainly less prejudical to health than 'cigarette amoking. But fashion in smoking, as in most things, seems to have made people take to cigaretten even where tobacco is cheap. Now that eightettos are made ex-pensive lade of immature age will probably be kept from smoking them. And the British soldier, if he abstains from them and sticks to the pipe of cherout used by his forefathers on the East, will probably find the latter interiers less with straight shooting than the more insidious cigarette

INSTITUTE.

The Biblical parable of the grain of mustard seed, we say it with no suggestion of irreverence, is aptly parallelled in the history of the Institute for Seamen in Hongkong. From a humble matshed in Kowloon opened in 1891-"a lucky year," according to Sir HENRY Mar-it has grown, through the publicspirited munificence of Sir Hountsize Mour and the strenuous labours of such men as the Revs. Gernny Goldsmith. LIFF, FRANCE, THOMPSON and CROPTON into a palatial building, which for accessibility of site, architectural beauty, completeness of detail and suitability of purpose renders it well worthy of the anthorities for the new mail run from third largest shipping centre in the Haiphong to Hongkong, reverted on British Empire. Time was when the Saturday to the British flag. class of men for whom the Institute caters were among the most neglected of any of the many social strata of drew a salary of £1,000 a year, but he was which humanity is composed, when the the last to be paid on this "scale, his horrors and the degradations of the Ratcliffe Highway in London were reproduced more or faithfully in their vicious in every shipping port of the 0s-8d. as the result of the year's working. world. To-day all this is a thing of the past. Not the least of the humanitarian achievements of the Victorian era was the work undertaken by the Missions to Seamen, and the cons crated labours of the pioneers who set about cleaning up the Augean stables in which poor Jack ashore stewed and auffered untold horrors while his ship was in port, or while he bung about York 16 days 20 hours-mother reco. idle waiting his next period of employment, is bearing fruit a hundred-

At the Criminal Sessions to-day, before the Chief Justice (Sir Francis Piggott) John Grant, formerly a surveyor in the Public Works Department, was charged with obtaining goods by false pretences. The first count char od him with h ving on the 28th of May falsely represented himself to Wong Lung Hine as being employed at the Public Works Depitrtment and thereby obtaining a gold diamond ring, and the second count with having represented himself to be E. The jury was constituted as follows :-Mesers W. King (foreman), C. E. Lynam, E. H. Thill, M. A. Fi cucido, P. J. West,

These statements may be successfully objected to when Sargt. Appleton goes into the box, and that being the case I say my friend ought not to open statements to the jury of that nature in his opening speech.

His Lordship. The point is absolutely new to me. I must leave it to Mr Slade. Mr Slade-I quite agree that where on the face of the depositions there is any possibility of exception being taken to statements which have been made a prisoner, the custom, I was going to say the friendly custom, is not to open it. There is no obligation not to open it, but the ordinary way is not to do it. But where the evidence directly states that the person going to give the evidence read the charge over and cautioned the prisoner I see no possible ground for not opening it, and thus making it quite clear:

Mr Potter - I can cut the whole thing short by saying that it is entirely in my friend's hands. I am hot going to ask for any more grace.

Mr. blade-If I thought there was the slightest possibility of any unfairness being done I would not open it. Proceeding Mr Slade seld Ser t. After he had been pointed the signatures on the warrant this man, who now pleaded not guilty, said at first :- " I know nothing about it." ". He then said :- " Has not Reed paid for it." I got it for him." He then asked the Sergeant if the matter could be settled without going into Court, and the reply was," No." The important part of that statement, was " Has not Reed paid for it, I got it for him." Mr Reed would be call-'ed and he would say that he never authorised the defendant to get the ring for him or to use his name for the purpose of obtaining the ring. Evidence was then called.
